Mail By Rail

Ninety years ago, a train pulled out of Chicago hauling a new-fangled car that looked like a cross between a box car and a passenger coach. This was an historic moment—for that car was the first of the rolling post offices, even though railroads had carried mail in bulk as early as 1831.

The rolling post office revolutionized the mail service, providing a speed and certainty of delivery that would have seemed unbelievable in prior times. Today 2,600 of the cars ply the 137,000 miles of railroad designated as mail routes by the Post Office department. Some 14,500 postal employees sort the mail on the move, while the railroads have nearly 50,000 of their own men assigned to handling the mail in stations. In addition, the lines make available for the mails a fleet of more than 11,500 baggage and express cars.

There is no question that mail by rail is the backbone of the postal system. The Iron Horse carries 35,000,000,000 pieces of mail a year—about 85 per cent of all non-local postal traffic. The law provides that the mail must be given preferential treatment over all other traffic—which means that in an emergency passengers might have to wait while the mails went through. Such an eventuality is hardly likely, however—the railroad-post office teams work together so smoothly and efficiently that each day's mountain of mail melts away into millions of mailbox molehills in routine fashion.

Finally, the railroads do this tremendous job for a very modest wage. Payments to the rails account for only 12½ per cent of the Post Office department's total expenses. And for transporting each piece of first-class mail the rails receive less than one-eighth of a cent—or about one-twenty-fourth of each three cents' worth of postage thus used.

Many a man who claims to be as honest as the day is long might object to having a searchlight turned on his night record.

A mirror will always cause a woman to pause and reflect.

A SAFE MEDICINE CHEST By Science Features

One household safety hazard is too often found in the very spot where help is most needed—the family medicine cabinet. If it is cluttered, dirty and lacking in the proper medications, it often results in unnecessary pain and worry rather than comfort for the ailing. To be on the safe side make sure that the medicine chest is clean and filled only with necessary articles, properly arranged for simple, quick use.

Start the clean-up by throwing away old, half-used prescription medicine, unless the doctor is consulted about its future effectiveness. Also get rid of that collection of bottles containing last year's cough syrup, burn lotion and iodine. These drugs, and many others, outlive their usefulness by evaporating or crystallizing and can cause severe injury when taken.

See that all items are clearly labeled so the contents do not have to be tested on some unfortunate patient already in pain. Before using, read the label on the package twice, and afterwards make sure to put the top back tightly.

Children should be kept away from the medicine cabinet for they may try some pleasant-tasting remedy not meant for them. Poisonous preparations should be put in a separate container, out of reach, and a safe disposal unit for razor blades and other waste matter should be available. These simple measures, along with the advice of your druggist, can produce a medicine cabinet that the whole family will appreciate.

Down the Years with The Townsman

50 Years Ago — September 1904

A fine exhibition of native cranberries from the Skeg River farm of Jack Morse is on exhibit in Henry McLawlin's.

Supt. of Streets Joseph T. Lovejoy has a gang of men at work macadamizing Salem street. A sidewalk is being laid on the south side of the street from Main street to the dining hall entrance.

Smith & Manning have purchased a fine pair of horses from a Reading stablekeeper.

The Stowe and John Dove pupils were sent home early yesterday owing to the extreme cold in the buildings.

The firemen's ball will be held as usual on Thanksgiving eve. A new departure will be the omission of the supper which was served in the upper story of the engine house to the dissatisfaction of the guests. Fall top coats $10 and $12.

It must have been a rude shock to the Lawrence officials to learn that the people of Andover must be considered in the proposed water deal, we say editorially. They had long since eliminated the citizens from consideration. There are some unkind enough to suggest that some on the public works board may have been inclined to feel the same way. The Lawrence board is expected to file another application which would have to go before a special town meeting for approval.

A correspondent suggests that the City of Lawrence get its supply of water from Lake Winnepesaukee.

An electric car was blown to pieces in Melrose about 8 p.m. Sept. 20. Nine people were killed and many others injured. Police announced that the cause of the wreck was the striking of a 50-pound box of dynamite which had fallen from an express wagon just ahead of the car. The forward part of the car was entirely demolished. The sight after the explosion was appalling. The ground was covered with torn and bleeding victims. Doctors were called in from many nearby places. The car had contained mostly working men bound to their homes in Melrose.

25 Years Ago — September 1929

Two locomotives coupled together and running "deadhead" from Worcester to Portland crashed head-on into the engine of a 95-car freight train bound from Lawrence to Rotterdam, N.Y. at the Burnham road bridge in Shawsheen early Saturday morning killing the engineer and firemen in one of the former engines and injuring five other railroad employees.

"Andover Achieves Notoriety" we headline a story about one of the unique ways Andover police use in determining whether a man is drunk or not. They have him hop down the corridor of the town house on one foot. If he falls over against the wall he is drunk. If he can travel the course with one leg in his hands the entire distance without accident, he is sober. This was brought out in a drunken driving case in superior court. Police Officer Leonard Saunders said he tried the test about 20 times and never fell. It was testified that the defendant crashed against the wall just as he started. Boston papers made a big play of the story.

Residents of Ballardvale are strongly opposed to the removal of the seventh grade pupils to Andover. A large number of parents have signed a petition protesting its action. Residents of the Vale feel that their section of Andover should have as good schools as the central portion of the town.

10 Years Ago — September 1944

A hurricane for the second time in six years struck Andover last Tuesday night doing little more than leaving local residents wondering whether the thing had not been over-publicized and over-radioized. Andover went to bed Thursday night waiting for the big blow which from all accounts was to have hit this area in the early evening, and awoke Friday morning on the disappointed side, the big blow having come and gone leaving very little trace of its power. Some trees were blown down on a few streets about 2:45 a.m. Friday, but the tree department, the board of public works and the utility companies had men working all night to repair the damage. Life in Andover was the same Friday morning as the morning before.

The names of five candidates have been submitted to the civil service commission at Washington as applicants for the postmaster-ship of Andover.

Punchard will open the football season Saturday against Concord.

Housewives are urged to use their blue tokens by Sept. 30 as after that date they will have no value.

TEACHERS SPONSOR UNIVERSITY COURSE

Juvenile delinquency is to be the subject of a university course to be offered in Andover this fall. Sponsored by the Andover Teachers Association, the course will deal with the nature of the pre-delinquent and the delinquent child and the various techniques and plans that have been utilized effectively in the prevention and control of undesirable behavior.

Entitled "The School, the Community, and the Juvenile Delinquent," and to be conducted by Dr. William C. Kvaraceus of Boston university, the course will have its first meeting Sept. 30 at 4 p.m. at the Central Elementary school. Miss Dorothy Kyle of the teachers association made the arrangements for this course with Boston University.

MISS FLATHER AT PINE MANOR

Miss Drusilla Flather, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Flather Jr., 45 Abbot st., entered her senior year at Pine Manor Junior college in Wellesley last week. She is a 1953 graduate of Northampton school for Girls.

RICHARD E. O'BRIEN

Richard E. O'Brien, postmaster at Ballardvale since 1936, died last Saturday at the Chelsea Soldiers' home following a short illness.

A native of Lawrence he was appointed to the Lawrence fire department in 1919 following military service in the first World War. He received a leave of absence in 1936 when first appointed postmaster by President Roosevelt, at which time he conducted a variety store at his Ballardvale residence, 333 Andover st. He suspended store operations in April because of the increase in postal business.

The deceased was a member of the National League of District Postmasters, the National Association of Postmasters, and the Andover Catholic club.

Surviving are his widow, the former Beatrice Scott; a son, James E., of New London, Conn., and Ballardvale; a daughter, Joan F.; a brother, William J.; three sisters, Mrs. Josephine Fitzgerald of Cairo, N.Y.; Mrs. Mary Brown, a Lawrence school teacher, and Nona, wife of Lawrence Patrolman Patrick Ford; also several nieces and nephews.

The funeral was held Tuesday from the late home with a solemn high requiem Mass at 10 a.m., in St. Patrick's church, Lawrence.

Burial was in St. Augustine's cemetery. Members of the Lawrence fire department were bearers and delegations were present from the retired Lawrence fire fighters, the U.S. postal department and Lawpost, 15, American Legion. Postmaster Stephen A. Boland attended from Andover.

Abbot Art Gallery Exhibits Landscapes

Five water color painters display five different approaches to landscape in an exhibition at the John Esther Art gallery of Abbot academy, to be shown through Sunday, Sept. 26.

The group show is entitled "Abstraction and Realism." Raymond Katz, who is particularly fond of blue and red-orange, "abstracts" a plant form into blue flames in a painting called "Burning Bush", and outlines with pigment and shapes of "Clown and Donkey". Mr. Katz is the author of "Adventures in Casein".

Helen Gundlach uses fingers and brushes to produce small but startling forest landscapes of markedly imaginative quality, which remind one never-the-less, of the photography of "The Rain Forest" in the current issue of "Life".

The doctrine of impressionism is represented in the show by Sara Bard, with scenes of the New England coast, and by Ferd Wagner, a commercial artist of Milwaukee, whose strong paintings of northern forests and streams contrast with the Gundlach pictures. J. Robert Miller, working chiefly in the Southeast, focuses his attention on more serene landscapes and his composition and color make for very attractive pictures.

Public Evangelistic Series Opens Here

Last Sunday evening the public evangelistic services got underway at the November club auditorium, as Evangelist John Hayward presented a stirring sermon entitled: "Christ: The Hope of the World".

This was the first in a series of Sunday evening services which will be presented in Andover by Seventh day Adventists of Southern New England. Associated with Evangelist Hayward are Austin Davis and George MacLaren, and the pianist is Edith Claus.

In his message last Sunday evening, the speaker stated: "Never before in the entire history of the world have such chaotic and confused conditions faced mankind. Many are dispondent and discouraged, at what they think is a hopeless situation. Statesmen and scientists are losing faith in the future. Man must now turn to God for an answer to his problems. Everything else has failed. Man has not succeeded in establishing peace in the earth or in his own heart, but the Scriptures teach that there is a way out."

Mr. Hayward continued by stating: "Our only hope of survival from the present world disorder is to follow the plan God has devised for our personal salvation, and to have faith that Jesus Christ will soon fulfill His promise to return to this earth as the only hope of the world and of the individual. Only the second coming of Christ will insure peace and hope for the future."

Sunday evening, Sept. 26, Evangelist Hayward will return to Andover with the Biblical answer to the question all are asking, "Will Russia Rule The World?" The public is invited to attend this service to be held at 7:30 p.m. in the November club auditorium at 6 Locke st.

Adult Study Group Adds New Courses

The 18th annual session of the Andover Evening Study Program for Adults opens Oct. 11 with a widely diversified offering of 17 different courses. Designed to rediscover old intellectual interests or to gain new ones, or in some cases to present purely practical benefits, the Program is open to all men and women in the area.

Program Director William H. Harding has included a balance of familiar favorites (either subject or instructor) and new materials. For the first time four courses will be led by women: "Crime-Causes and Curbs" by Mrs. Dudley Fitts; "Play Reading" by Mrs. William H. Harding; "Music of the Organ" by Mrs. Lorene S. Banta; and "Corrective Exercises for Women" by Miss Dorothy Judd.

"Crime-Causes and Curbs" is expected to attract considerable interest because of the subject and the array of visiting speakers, including former Massachusetts Commissioner of Correction, Judge Reuben L. Lurie, John Coughlan, Director of the Youth Service Board, the Superintendent of the Lancaster school for girls, and the Andover Chief of Police, David L. Nicoll.

Courses with new subject material or focus include: "The 'Odyssey' in Translation"; "Photography," with an emphasis on color photography; "Art and Science," chairmanned by Bartlett H. Hayes and including speakers from the fields of architecture and science; "Music of the Organ"; and "Contemporary Political Problems" which will include panel discussions. Another interesting course for those with language interest and moderate or limited skill is "French Conversation," chairmanned by Stephen Whitney who has been one of the pioneers in the teaching of French in the elementary schools.

Full information and a descriptive booklet can be obtained by writing or telephoning (Andover 720) the Andover Evening Study Program, Phillips. Andover. With all instructors donating their services without pay the cost is held down to a $1.00 registration fee plus $1.00 for each course selected. Registration blanks and the course description booklet can also be obtained at the public libraries in Andover, Lawrence, Methuen, North Andover, Lowell, Haverhill, Reading and Stoneham.

Expedite Case Of Tippy Driver

A Minnesota truck driver arrested here Friday on charges of drunkenness and operating while under the influence of liquor had his case expedited by Lawrence court officials Saturday so that he could continue on his way.

Police Chief David L. Nicoll informed the court that the defendant, Lawrence Westerlund, 32, of St. Paul, Minn., requested an early trial to dispose of the case. The latter pleaded guilty to both charges.

Judge John J. Darcy pointed out that the statutes provide that no disposition be made in motor violation cases until a report is received from the registry as to a possible previous record. The case was put aside for a time to allow Halbert W. Dow, assistant clerk of courts to contact the registry. However, the latter reported he was unable to get in touch with anyone at the office. Judge Darcy then had Patrolman Roy A. Russell, arrest-officer, testify to the details.

The witness stated he had observed the truck on Main street veer on several occasions. He stopped the truck at Chestnut street and arrested the driver who admitted he had been drinking in Lawrence.

After the defendant stated he had no record "except a speeding ticket some years ago," Judge Darcy accepted his word and then imposed a fine of $5 on the drunkenness complaint and $50 on the operating charge.

VALE SEWER PLANT PASSES INITIAL TEST

float-switch which automatically controls the operation of two 75 gallon-a-minute pumps located in the adjoining pump room. When the sewage level in the collecting sump rises to a certain height, the float-switch starts one pump, which pumps the sewage from the collecting sump to the Imhoff tank. If the flow of sewage exceeds the capacity of one pump, the float-switch starts the second pump. As the level of the sewage in the collecting sump falls, the float-switch stops the pumps.

The first treatment unit, the Imhoff tank, is a concrete open basin through which the sewage flows at slow enough velocity to allow the suspended matter in it to settle out. This suspended matter constitutes about 1/2 the polluting material in sewage. The suspended matter which settles to the bottom of the Imhoff tank passes through a slot into a separate compartment of the tank where it digests for several months, and from which it is drawn semi-annually to drying beds.

From the Imhoff tank, the clarified sewage flows through a dosing tank to the second step in its treatment, the trickling filter. This unit is an open circular concrete tank 31 feet in diameter, with an underdrained bottom upon which rests a bed of coarse stone 8 feet deep. Sewage is discharged upon the surface of the filter by a rotary distributor propelled by the flow of sewage.

The trickling filter purifies sewage by providing on the surface of its stones a tremendous area upon which bacteria and other tiny biological life establish themselves and live upon this organic matter in the sewage. By feeding upon the sewage, these organisms convert the offensive, decomposable matter in the sewage to stable inoffensive matter.

After leaving the filter the sewage passes through a secondary subsiding basin to remove the suspended solids produced by the organisms in the filter. This basin differs from the Imhoff tank in that the solids which settle to the bottom are removed daily by an electrically-operated scraper while the basin is in use, and pumped to the Imhoff tank for digestion in its separate compartment.

From the secondary subsiding basin, the treated sewage flows to the Shawsheen river. Should experience indicate that treatment should be supplemented by sterilization of the final effluent chlorine can be applied to the inlet of the secondary subsiding basin, the basin providing the period of detention necessary to kill bacteria before the sewage is discharged to the river.

The sludge drying beds are shallow beds of sand, underdrained, upon which digested sludge is discharged semi-annually from the Imhoff tank. The sludge dries in a week of dry weather, when it is removed and used for fill, or composting for agricultural use.

The building houses the collecting sump and pump room. The latter is provided with a heater.

The entire plant or any of its components may be by-passed if necessary. The collecting sump is provided with an overflow to prevent flooding of the sump room if the pumps fail to operate.

The plant was built by the N. M. & N. Construction Co. of Medford for $50,900. It was completed within the contracted time limit, in a very satisfactory manner.

It was designed by Weston & Sampson, Engineers, of Boston.

Where there's a will there's a way—and eventually a lawsuit.

Hurricane Closes Work On Sewer

Owing to flood conditions around Chestnut and Bartlett streets caused by Hurricane Edna the board of public works has voted to close down work on the sewer construction in Chestnut street until ground conditions warrant resumption of the work.

Due to the exceptionally heavy rain the trench in the street was flooded for several days after the storm and water continued to seep into it from Rogers brook, which was also flooded.

There was so much water in the park after the storm that boys enjoyed themselves by paddling a boat around there.

Work on the new sewer was interrupted previously by Hurricane Carol when the department had to put all available men on the job of clearing streets from fallen trees. The ground is still soaking with water and is expected to be so for some time.

Asks All To Stop Throwing Hurricane Debris On Streets

The cooperation of the residents of the town is sought by the board of public works who ask that people will discontinue the practice of throwing broken limbs and branches of trees into the streets that have been cleaned.

Chairman Sidney P. White of the board points out that it makes it difficult for the department to continue on in other parts of the town when they have to go back two or three times to collect such hurricane debris from streets that already have been cleaned.

While the department wants to cooperate with the people he notes that the department has picked up a great many loads of broken limbs and branches that have been cleaned from lawns in the past two or more weeks and asks where the streets have been cleaned up that this practice will be discontinued.

Punchard To Open Season Saturday

Punchard will unveil its 1954 football team when it opens the current season Saturday at Wilmington.

Head Coach Bob McIntyre and Assistant Coach Joe Igoe have been working with the squad since the first of the month but much of the practice was curtailed by the recent hurricanes.

The squad had a workout Monday against Tewksbury in which some of the newer prospects showed up well.

During the scrimmage Art Schwarzenberg dislocated his left elbow and will be lost to the team for several weeks. He was treated at the Lawrence General hospital. While unable to play regularly he has volunteered to do the place kicking for the team.

Punchard engaged with a controlled scrimmage with Lawrence high Tuesday afternoon at the Lawrence stadium as both clubs en in polishing up their play for their opening games.

West, Mrs. Ralph A. Kimball, Donald G. Thompson, Mrs. George F. Sawyer, Benjamin F. Dimlich, Dr. Douglas M. Dunbar, Mrs. Ralph H. Hill, Wallace M. Haselton, Edward Johnston. Captain, Mrs. John N. Cole, 2nd; team members: Mrs. Lawrence D. Bragg, Mrs. William H. Harding, James D. Wilson, Mrs. Harry Axelrod, Mrs. Robert C. Holland, Mrs. Frederick H. Dodkin.

More than 75 men and women in the five major communities served by the Lawrence General hospital taking part in the special gifts phase of the development program heard an inspiring talk by the Rev. Clinton W. Carvell, minister of the Trinitarian Congregational church in North Andover, and facts and figures which brought out the urgent need for the proposed new wing were given by Abbot Stevens, general chairman of the fund and Mrs. A. B. Sutherland, president of the board of trustees.

Mr. Stevens told of the complete understanding of the need for the new wing and of the full cooperation of all the hospital departments and of families approached by the memorial gifts committee. He sent the members of the special gifts committee on their way with the knowledge that $337,579 had already been given or pledged toward the $600,000 goal. He stressed the 3-year pledge plan and told of how easy it can be to give substantially when pledge amounts are broken down into weekly, monthly or semi-annual payments.

Special gifts solicitors are hoping for gifts of $100 to $1000 or more. Memorial or dedicatory units will be available for those approached by special gifts committee members who wish to give $1000 or more, just as they are to all others wishing to honor someone by giving a living memorial. Pledges may be made for units, as well as for smaller gifts.
